TO:  Yale College Class Officers and Volunteers
FR:  Jenny Chavira, Debby Jagielow, Janet Cappiello, Karen Jahn, & Jennifer Julier
RE:  Class Lists – Electronic or Paper

Enclosed please find the class list you recently requested. Before using the data on this list, we ask that you review the following information to protect the privacy of your classmates in accordance with University policy. If you have any questions about the information included here, please don’t hesitate to contact your AYA class liaison.

General Use of Alumni Data

The list is provided to you as a class officer or other class volunteer for class and University purposes only, such as class events, reunion events, and class communications. Alumni trust the University to respect their privacy and to use their contact information appropriately. Our practice of entrusting the information to volunteers stands or falls on volunteer willingness to protect the information and limit its use to class or Yale-related activities.

Examples of ways that this information should not be used include (but are not limited to): political or other outside fundraising, research projects, and publicity for non-Yale events. Special Yale fundraising projects must be cleared with the Development Office before soliciting classmates, and the AYA will therefore share with the Development Office for review any class mailings that include a fundraising solicitation other than that for ordinary class dues.

The list also cannot be used for information that could otherwise be publicized in the Class Notes (such as a partnership announcement). The AYA receives these sorts of requests on a weekly basis, and we wouldn’t be surprised if you did too! Your AYA staff liaison would be happy to discuss these policies with you and provide guidance.

Use of email addresses to send bulk emails Increasingly, classes are choosing broadcast email and other electronic means to distribute information about class events. Using email has the advantage of immediacy and cost-effectiveness, but there are also some disadvantages. Yale has email for many alumni, but not all, and some alumni have indicated that they do not wish to receive email from Yale. In addition, email is not the best way to distribute detailed information. If you have the ability to post schedules and reservation details on your class website, your email can still be brief and punchy, while pointing classmates to that site for more information.

If you choose to send an email to more than five (5) of the alumni listed on your class list, it is strongly recommended that you include their email addresses in the “BCC” field (rather than “TO” or “CC” fields) of an email message. This both protects the privacy of your classmates’ addresses and shortens the length of your message, since the recipients will not need to scroll through the long list of recipients to read your message.

AYA has a broadcast email tool and we encourage class officers and volunteers to make use of this rather than sending mass emails themselves. Your internet service provider (ISP) may restrict your ability to send email to multiple recipients, and using AYA’s tool takes advantage of the most up-to-date email addresses on record in Yale’s alumni database. In addition, we can provide guidance on limiting the volume of emails you send to avoid overwhelming classmates with messages. Please allow time for discussing the email’s text with your staff person, who may have valuable suggestions based on past experience. Once final text is approved, we need about a week to prepare and send the message to your classmates.

If you do decide to email all classmates directly, and you plan to do so with any frequency – as you prepare for a 5-year reunion, for example – please clearly note that in your first message. You should then provide classmates the opportunity to “opt out” of future communications. It’s a good idea to include these reminders in each subsequent email. Again, be aware that many ISPs have restrictions on bulk emails; you should contact your ISP directly for more information.

Reliability of data included in your class list

Please remember, even though the University’s Alumni Records department is literally updating information daily with data coming from alumni via mail, phone, email and web, this list is only as accurate as the information provided by the individual alumnus/a. Therefore, you are certain to find addresses (particularly email) that are out of date or records with missing information. You will greatly aid Yale in our record keeping if you encourage your classmates to keep their contact information current with the university. Alumni Records can be reached at 203/432-1100 or alumni.records@yale.edu. Individual alumni may also update their information directly by logging into the Online Alumni Directory via the AYA homepage at www.aya.yale.edu

Sharing data on your class website or with other class volunteers

If you are inclined to put classmate information on your website, you must password-protect this section of the site. The AYA can provide some technical assistance to your webmaster, and we will also be happy to work with you to publicize the password to your classmates.

If you chose to share this class list with other class volunteers for reunion or class-activity planning purposes, we ask that you include this information sheet along with the electronic file or paper list.

Please call upon your AYA staff liaison if you have any questions about the use or dissemination of your classmates’ information. Thank you for your cooperation.

updated 1/06 djj